

Partnership Reaches New Heights with Roofing Contract

Pictured on the roof of the University of Huddersfield's Central Services Building (from front to rear): Colin Blair (director of the University of Huddersfield's Estates & Facilities), Tony Lelliott (building surveyor at the University at Huddersfield's Estates & Facilities) and Tony Collins (project manager for Tolent Construction).

Tolent Construction are continuing our long-term partnership with the University of Huddersfield after securing a contract to refurbish the roofing of the fourteen-floor Central Services Building, the latest in a series of developments undertaken on behalf of the University dating back to 2001.

Previous contracts which Tolent have successfully completed as part of the University's ongoing redevelopment programme include a new reception, library refurbishment, new teaching and performing arts centre in Oldham and the conversion of a music building into a lecture theatre/teaching facility and offices for the Estates & Facilities department.

'The fact that we have been using Tolent for in excess of ten projects since 2001 demonstrates our satisfaction with the reliable quality of their work and service,' said Colin Blair, director of the University of Huddersfield's Estates & Facilities. 'In 2008 they completed five projects with a total value of approximately £8.5 million. In each case Tolent worked closely with the University's management team and end users to deliver very high quality, high-tech facilities, all of which were completed on time to fit the schedule of the academic year.'

'We are delighted to continue working with the University of Huddersfield on their exciting redevelopment,' said project manager, Tony Collins. 'For many years Tolent Construction have been very active in the education sector and I believe that our experience has been an important factor in developing a successful relationship with the University.'

